The area in which this school is placed is a difficult area for the cultural Christian community who, as minority children, experience discrimination in the government schools. There are around 50 students being educated in this little school and in the light of the challenges that the children face Shared Hope is happy to partner with the FGA church grouping who have taken on responsibility for administering the school. This school is in Rahim Yar Khan which is not easily accessible but one of our partners in Pakistan has agreed to visit once a year.

Shared Hope's contribution to the running of this school will include finance for uniforms and books as well as resource to pay for the rented property in which the school is run and provision for the salaries of those who work there.

The head teacher of this small school in a rural area of Pakistan is Pastor Hankook. As well as being the pastor of a church, he is a qualified primary teacher and oversees the school with the help of another three teachers.
