The aim of this project is to teach adults to read and write in Koti thereby empowering a generation of illiterate people, enabling them to get better jobs, improving their family life and developing leaders in the church. The primary beneficiaries will be the adults who learn to read and their families. If parents can read their children can read it creates a very different environment at home. It becomes a place of stimulation and learning. The community where Joe and Jenny are involved is extremely poor and poorly educated.

The benefits accruing from being able to read and write are life transforming. When adults become literate their attitude to education radically changes and this programme which is for both adults and children is directed at changing hearts and minds in the whole area of education within this community as well as equipping the students with a foundation on which they can build that will enable them to better support themselves and their families.

Joe Graham was sent from a church in Japan. Joe is a New Zealander and his wife Jenny is Malaysian. They both completed degrees in Sociology from Canterbury University and attended City New Life Church in Christchurch. Their ministry in this community is holistic and they have embarked on a literacy programme in their area.
