This is a varied project which embraces the following:

- A school of around 675 children which is both primary and secondary. The children are fed every day with food prepared on the site.
- A home for about 260 children is based at the school and remarkably in the context of the culture, there has not been one instance of pregnancy.
- A community clinic.
- Timothy and the leadership are involved with a farm of 5-6 acres where food is grown and some crops are sold to help finance the programme. Crops are harvested twice each year and the Foundations for Farming principles have been enthusiastically taken on board. This has resulted in a significant increase in effectiveness. The farm has 12 cows which provide milk for the school.
- The practical dimensions of this ministry are built round the church in the community.

With the very large number of boarders and students this is a project that requires significant administrative discipline. This aspect of the programme is overseen by Mighty who is the daughter of the Kakoozas and who has a BA in Education Management.

This school and child care project is led by Timothy and Janepher Kakooza. Timothy grew up in very poor circumstances on the streets of Kampala selling fruit for a living. He has brought his entrepreneurial skills to supervise and develop the school project which embraces education, child care and agricultural development. Both Timothy and Janepher, who have been married for over 20 years, are driven people who have made a huge impact in the community at Katosi and beyond.
